Dear Christine!

I've just got your letter. Russian post service is very slow and ^{the} letter was ^{at} on the post office about a week, and I even didn't know about it. So, sorry for ^{my} answering late.

You asked me about arguing with my friends. My friends and I don't argue very often. We can accidentally ^{orpp} hurt each other with the word. After an argument we usually talk, find ^{opp} compromises, forgive each other and shake hands. Our arguments usually don't last long. To make up with Linda, I think, you should listen to her point of view, ^{and} to tell her your opinion. Then together you'll find ^a decision ^{u.} of your problem. After that you'll surely make up.

You told me about ^a sports centre. Tell me more about it, please. What do people do there? Are there any coaches or instructors? Is visiting centre free or you should pay money?

I'm waiting patiently for your answer.

Best wishes,

Your Russian friend Evgeny.
